ROLLS ! ROLLS ! ROLLS !

(Note: Estimates indicated are of actual sales, auction or retail, personally known to me. Many of these rolls have been advertised considerably higher than our estimate and no doubt some were sold. Naturally I know of only a few of the many private transactions being made in this popular series. Also, many of these will advance in price in the two months that expire between cataloguing and the actual sale. We mention this as many of our estimates may seem ridiculously low by Convention time.)

End of Third Session

Please Note . . .

THIS IS AN AUCTION SALE

Conducted in accordance with the Laws of the State of Ohio, Catalogued and Sold by a Licensed and Bonded Auctioneer.

It will be an unrestricted Sale with only the following exception: Any Lot which has a reserve will be plainly indicated and the minimum bid stated. Reserves are accepted only on unusual items and when required by law in selling an estate.

Buying at Auction Sale is not like approval service where coins are subject to your likes and dislikes, or returned because you have obtained a specimen in the meantime. If the material is as listed, and you are high bidder, it is yours without recourse. Certainly we make mistakes and are pleased to adjust them, but we cannot be responsible for the bidders' mistakes.

To avoid errors read the description carefully and be sure it is the item wanted and that it will fit your collection. About two percent or one out of every fifty Lots sold are returned, some with reasons or excuses - like the following:

"Am returning 1924-D Cent as I do not consider it Brilliant Uncirculated." (It was catalogued as Unc. light, reddish brown.)

"Am returning Silver Dollars as you charged me too much. They are currently advertised for less."

But the best of all was the man who returned the Nickel because it would not fit the hole in his plastic holder.

At every Sale a few collectors bid on the wrong Lot numbers so please be sure the material you are bidding on is what you want and that you are bidding on the right number.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION IF NECESSARY

We will be glad to furnish any additional information regarding condition, color, variety or valuation. On rare and valuable coins, time permitting, we will send them for inspection to established clients. We will do everything in our power to help you . . . your cooperation will be appreciated.

James Kelly, PRESIDENT
